Unusual Relief Work Campaign Will Get Under Way Saturday

Hundreds of workers from this section will attend the big mass meeting of the Boston Emergency Relief Campaign, to be held Saturday night at Mechanics Building, where final instructions for all workers will be given by Robert F. Herrick, General Chairman of the Campaign and other campaign leaders. The Boston Emergency Relief Campaign will open next Monday for the purpose of raising a fund of $5,000,000 to be distributed through 115 private welfare organizations of the city for relief work.

Every worker and resident of the city will be solicited for a contribution to the fund, either at his place of business or at his home, the Ward Committee being in charge of the solicitation of every home and every business concern in its own district, except a few of the largest factories or businesses, which will come under the industry and finance Committee.

The meeting Saturday evening will be open to the public and any person who may wish to attend may procure a ticket at the ward headquarters for the campaign. Church, civic and campaign leaders will address the gathering explaining the needs of such a campaign, the plan for raising the fund, the particular fitness of the welfare agencies to administer relief, the economy of conducting one general campaign during the year, instead of scores of individual campaigns, and other pertinent phases of the drive.

Either James Farley, who managed the successful campaign of Franklin D. Roosevelt for President, or United States Senator David I. Walsh will be the principal speaker at the meeting.

Other speakers will include Governor Joseph B. Ely, representing the City of Boston; Cardinal O'Connell or his personal representative, Bishop William Lawrence and Rabbi Harry Levi. Among the campaign leaders, who will address the meeting on the various phases of the Campaign, are Maj. Richard S. Whitcomb, Executive Manager of the Campaign; Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., Chairman of the Wards Committee; Louis J. Hunter, Chairman of the Industry and Finance Committee; Sewall Fessenden, Chairman of the Special Gifts Committee; Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Chairman of the Women's Division; Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer; William J. Fortune, Chairman of the Cooperation and Speakers' Committee; Maurice J. Tobin, Vice Chairman of Wards Committee, in charge of Homes Division; and Joseph A. Maynard, Vice Chairman of Wards Committee, in charge of Trades Division. Robert F. Herrick, General Chairman of the Campaign, will preside.

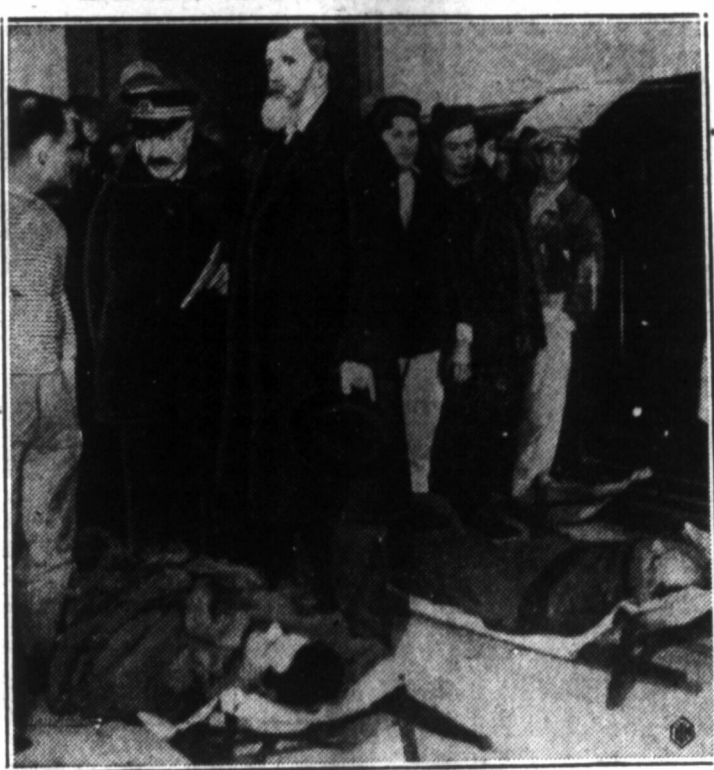

A splendid musical program will be interspersed with the addresses. In his address Maj. Whitcomb will explain the general plan of the Campaign. Louis J. Hunter will explain the plan of the industry and finance Committee, to which has been assigned the task of raising $2,000,000 of the entire fund. This committee, which will canvass every business concern of the downtown area of the city, has been organized under 17 different divisions. The divisions have in turn been subdivided into 150 trade groups with a chairman in charge of each group. These groups will contact every business concern of their trade, so that no business concern of the city will be unsolicited. In every case contributions will be asked from both employer and employee, the former being asked to donate one day's pay each month for five months, while the employers will be asked to contribute even more generously, proportionately.

The plans for the Wards Committee will be explained by the chairman of that committee, Sen. Henry Parkman, Jr. This year, instead of one general canvassing, the committee will be two divisions, the Homes Division and the Trades Division. Maurice J. Tobin is Vice Chairman in charge of the Homes Division and Joseph A. Maynard, Vice Chairman in charge of the Trades Division. Separate organizations will be set up under the ward chairman in each ward of the city with a vice chairman in charge of each group. The quota for the Wards Committee is $500,000.

The Special Gifts Committee will supervise the solicitation of the larger donations to the Campaign from persons of means. This committee is under direction of Sewall H. Fessenden and its quota has been set at $2,000,000.

Mrs. Barrett Wendell will speak for the Women's Division, which is expected to play an important part in the Campaign. The women, through their division, will cooperate with the men's organization in every important phase of the Campaign. They will cooperate with the Wards Committee and in many cases a woman will be Vice Chairman of the individual work group; they have their own Special Gifts Committee to cooperate with that of the men and will also conduct several activities exclusively their own, such as the Booths Committee, which will set up collectors in the leading hotels, railroad stations and other public places of the city.

Saved from Burned Liner

Injured survivors of the disaster which befell the French liner L'Atlantique, which burned in the English Channel, are shown as they were ministered to by a doctor on their arrival at Cherbourg, France. Thirty seamen of the crew of 260 lost their lives when the new $18,000,000 liner became a blazing torch 40 miles off Cherbourg. French authorities are probing the cause of the disaster.

CHAIRMAN OF HEALTH BOARD, ROTARY SPEAKER

Alfred W. Lombard, chairman of the board of health, was the guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Arlington Rotary club in the Middlesex Sportsman's clubhouse yesterday noon.

Introduced by John A. Bishop, president of the club, the speaker gave an interesting talk on the work of the board of health. He surveyed health conditions in Arlington. Among other things, he said that the dental clinic conducted by the board of health was one of the best in the State. The speaker referred to the Middlesex Hospital toward the up-keep of which the town of Arlington must contribute. He stated that the town would have to pay but $8,000 this year toward the running expenses of the hospital as compared with $17,000 last year.

Much emphasis was placed on the problem of dogs. It was felt by those present that the increasing number of large dogs who are allowed to run loose in the town was becoming a menace to the residents of the town. The speaker admitted that large dogs should be guarded from running onto private property, upsetting garbage pails to get at garbage, and especially should be guarded from the possibility of attacking people. Mr. Lombard spoke of the movement to vaccinate all dogs of the town.

In addition to the speaking, the Rotarians were treated to a fine musical program.

An impromptu quartet composed of Clarence Dempsey, superintendent of schools; Robert Patterson, of the Arlington Gas Light company; Archie F. Bullock, chief of the police; and Dr. Ernest Fisher, entertained with several pleasing selections but their efforts seemed to have been wasted as their singing was voted "terrible." However, it must be admitted that these Rotarians are very particular. Walter Hutchinson then entertained with trombone selections and "Pete" Peterson rounded out the program with some of his peerless work at the piano.

To Organize P. T. Association Here

A meeting will be held at the Brackett School, Wednesday afternoon January 18, at 3.45 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a parent-teacher association. The object of this association is to bring into closer relation the home and the school, that parents and teachers may cooperate intelligently in the training and education of the children of this community.

Any one interested in such an organization is cordially invited to be present.

Foreign Missionary Will Speak Here

The missionary committee of Arlington Heights Baptist C. E. Society under the direction of Henry Anderson has done noble work. It has taken one meeting a month and has put on a special program. This committee gave a wonderful Thanksgiving Bazaar to one of the parishioners of the church. At Christmas time a group went out singing Christmas Carols to the sick. They are also planning to give the Welfare Council a box of clothes. A wonderful treat is in store for you next month. An Albanian Missionary is to speak and show pictures of his work.

Suggests Most Suitable Location In Report Made Public Yesterday—Report Follows Survey Made By State Department of Public Works—Was Made At Request of Arlington Planning Board—Recommendations In Report—Planning Board Suggests Further Study

That the town of Arlington would benefit from a new street-car loop is indicated by Clarence P. Taylor, Traffic Engineer of the State department of Public Works in the long-awaited report of the traffic survey made here last summer. The report was released for publication at the town hall yesterday after it had been properly studied by the Joint Board and the Planning Board.

With the State Engineer's report was a letter from the Planning Board of which Walton H. Sears is chairman. Stating that the Planning Board had thoroughly studied the report on traffic and transportation in the town of Arlington, Mr. Sears suggests in his letter that a further study of the problem be made if a way to finance the investigation is found. Mr. Sears states that the Planning Board is willing to prepare an article for the town warrant asking that an appropriation be made for a further survey and engineering study to determine the cost of the various locations suggested by State Engineer Taylor for a proposed loop. The approximate amount which would be appropriated to carry on this survey and engineering study would be $3,000, the Planning Board suggests. Furthermore, the Board suggests that this survey be made by the town before the Boston Elevated is again approached with reference to a loop.

Urges Careful Planning
The Planning Board, which had originally requested the State to make a study of Arlington's traffic situation, points to the following features of the State Engineer's report:
1. That one of the inadequacies of present transportation arrangements is the lack of coordination of various transportation systems.
2. That a new street-car loop should be located so as to provide facilities for such coordination.
3. That the loop should be at or near Arlington Centre.
The Planning Board in turning over the State's report to the public emphasizes the fact that the problem calls for planning of the highest order to ensure that the changes which should be made in the near future will be most beneficial to the future development of the town's most important business and traffic centre.

The State's Report
The report of the State Engineer is accompanied by a letter explaining how it came about that the traffic survey was made by the State Public Works department. The letter states that the Commonwealth's Engineer was asked by the Planning Board to find a satisfactory solution to the street-car traffic problem facing Arlington. The questions which were put up to the State Engineer were:

1. Is a loop feasible as a means of relieving this transportation situation? 2. If so, where should it be located? 3. What would be the effect on traffic provided that fifteen to twenty cars per hour entered Massachusetts avenue at Swan place?

History Of The Case
The first move of the State Engineer was to study the history of the case. The Engineer upon checking up with John A. Easton, clerk of the board of Selectmen, found that complaints have been registered about the Elevated congestion ever since 1911 when the Arlington Business Men's association registered the first appeal for better service. Since that time, complaints have come in at intervals and records show that the Boston Elevated officials have at various times taken definite steps to improve the service. Records also show that on several occasions, various boards of selectmen showed anything but a spirit of cooperation to the Boston Elevated. The records also revealed that the schedules were revised from time to time by the Elevated in hopes of improving transportation service.

The State Answers
In answering the three questions put up by the Planning Board, the State Engineer after his careful survey of last summer states in his report that a loop would be a feasible means of providing adequate transportation for Arlington. The State Engineer contends that the present transportation facilities are inadequate because: Cars are overcrowded during peak hours; traffic congestions exist during these rush hours; certain districts in Arlington are without satisfactory transportation service; there is no means of rapid transit; no coordination exists between facilities provided by street cars, trains, busses and taxis.

The State Engineer reports that indirect benefits would follow the laying out of a loop. He points out that cars now running uselessly between Arlington Heights and the Elevated $20,000 a year since they are operated practically empty. The loop would save the Elevated this expense as the company might run cars "express" from Arlington Centre to Harvard square and then "local" from the loop in the Centre to the Heights.

The loop will not eliminate traffic congestion in the Centre, the report follows, unless it is located east of Broadway and Massachusetts avenue. However, the report states that the new Nahawick trail route which is to be built by the State along a good main line will eliminate a good deal of the present congestion. The street-cars going in and out of the loop can be made to fit satisfactorily into the traffic situation no matter where the loop is located, according to the report.

Common Terminal
The loop would provide a common terminal and transfer point for busses, street-cars and train lines, the report indicates. Referring to railroad transportation provided for Arlington, the State Engineer points out that Boston & Maine trains require only six minutes to cover the distance between Arlington and North Station; street-cars require twenty-six minutes and automobiles, thirty-five to get into town. Although the trains provide the only rapid transit they have their disadvantages, the report points out. They are run at infrequent intervals; cost of tickets is too high; the railroad provides no transfer privilege; and therefore the Boston & Maine cannot compete with the Elevated unless some arrangement were made with the latter company to provide transfer privilege.

If a satisfactory rapid transit line and transfer privilege were established, the traffic to and from Boston would amount to 5,445,000 rides a year, the report states. These figures are obtained from an actual traffic count taken

FIRST TEST OF MEDFORD TRACKSTERS COMES FRIDAY WITH LYNN ENGLISH

Arthur Noble, Temporarily In Charge of Track Men During Coach Pidgeon's Illness, Will Send His Aggregation Against What Is An Unknown Lynn Collection — Capt. Kozowyk and Eddie Howard Appear Likely Winners In Longer Runs — First Meet For Opponents

The confident Medford High track warriors, under the temporary coaching of Arthur Noble who is taking charge during the illness of Coach Edwin Pidgeon, will meet their first test of the indoor season tomorrow afternoon at the Medford High gym when Lynn English pays a visit to the local track oval. Festivities will get underway at 3 o'clock.

The boys are chock full of fight after that tie with the illustrious Alumni on New Year's afternoon, which was more than a moral victory for the Kozowyk led tracksters, and they are now anxious to learn their own strength when put to competition of their own class, namely, the schools listed on this season's indoor schedule.

Howard In 600
For the most part the Blue and Whites will depend on Gary Famigletti in the dash and Bob Bolivar in the 300-yard sprint. Eddie Howard appears to be in excellent fettle in this early stage of the indoor campaign and will take a lot of licking in the 600. He trailed Auburn-haired Joe Murphy of the Alumni on New Year's in the fair time of 1 minute 25 seconds but Howard can and will do much better time than that before long. Along with Howard in that event will be Leon Gingsas who copied third place in the Alumni scrap.

State champ Eddie Kozowyk can be counted on for a victory in the 1000 and with him will be paired Eddie Quinlan, a newcomer to track but a boy that shows unusual promise. He should be a possible place winner and may finish second to Capt. Kozowyk.

Two Shot Prospects
Ralph Webster, who upset the apple cart by trimming Ed De Leo in the 12 pound shot put in the Alumni encounter, with Gary Famigletti also leaving the iron ball, the Medford forces probably may land a couple places.

Amos Guarante and Phil Crimmins, both of whom are doing well over 9 feet consistently in the standing broad jump may be depended upon for a place or two in the leap event. Ray Henderson and Bob Kelly are the likely prospects in the high jump.

Just what the Lynn visitors will present in the way of competition is an unknown quantity. English has not yet had a dual meet and what the boys can do under fire has not yet been brought out.

Joe Orpen will man the firearms that will send the runners on their way.

Harper Is Training For Herlihy Fight

Following the footsteps of his stablemate and pal, Ernie Schaff, Tommy Harper local welterweight is returning to the ring after a one year layoff due to a fractured hand.

Tommy was one of the most promising young fighters until the accident. Being young and ambitious he is set on acquiring New England and National recognition in welterweight division.

Harper will start his campaign by meeting Frank Herlihy, another young aspirant for the New England title at New Arena in Lynn, January 23rd.

Harper is training daily at Buckley's Gym and is being whipped in condition by Salvey Cianci and Al Welch, his trainers.

He will spar daily with the rugged colored lad from Roxbury Joe Gregory.

Football Squad Receives Letters At MHS Assembly

The Junior and Senior boys at Medford High were treated to an unusually interesting assembly yesterday morning. The session opened with a short welcoming speech by Headmaster Ralph L. Kendall, who introduced Herbert L. Collins, faculty manager of athletics. Mr. Collins presented members of the fall football team with letters and sweaters.

Following the presentation he introduced Nils E. "Swede" Nelson assistant coach of football at Harvard College. Mr. Nelson entertained the boys for over an hour with a talk on sports, illustrating his lecture with moving pictures of the Army-Yale and Harvard-Yale football games, as well as the much discussed "long count" fight between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney.

The boys receiving letters and sweaters were Gorge Sacco, Gary Famigletti, Earl Laird, Lawrence Green, Henry Gerrior, Arthur Bimbo, William Warren, Donald Farnum, Robert Hudson, Domenic Padula, Ralph Webster, John Correia, Ernest Gregorio, Carlo Sarno, Fred Brown, Thomas Endicott, Raymond Wilkins, John Fitzgerald, Charles Crowley, Ronald McDonald, Edward Jewett, Robert Meagher, Robert Thorson, Larry Pothier, Francis McNamara, Carl Carlson and William Clifford.

Her mood quickly changed, however, for he asked her to marry him. And, refusing to allow herself to think of her past, she consented.

They got married at City Hall. "It didn't hurt at all, did it?" grinned Jimmy after the ceremony. Mae squeezed his arm affectionately.

"Well, Mrs. Doyle," he went on. "What do you think we ought to do now?"

"Anything you say, boss," she answered, looking up into his face. "Well, I figure we oughta have a honeymoon."

"That's what generally happens," she agreed.

"Okay. We'll go over to Palsades Park."

"We'll take in the works. Then go over to your place, pick up your stuff and move right into my apartment. How's that appeal to you, Mrs. Doyle?"

"Just grand, Mr. Doyle." He winked at her mischievously. Thoroughly exhausted, they got to Mae's apartment late that night. The girl searched her bag for her key, as she said:

"You can time me. I won't take over five minutes to pack."

"Better not," he warned her. "I'll fall asleep on my feet."

As she inserted the key in the lock, she looked up, puzzled.

"Gee, that's funny—I left my door open."

Opening the door, they found the room illuminated.

"Can you imagine," began Mae, "I left the lights—"

She stopped, horrified. Jimmy, following her gaze, jumped in surprise.

"MacKenzie, the detective who had arrested her for soliciting on the streets, watched them quietly."

CADETS BID STRONG TO DEFEAT COMPANY E BUT AGAIN BEATEN 40-34

First Corps Cadets of Boston failed in their attempt to even the score with Lawrence Light Guard, Company E, in their second basketball game of the season at the Medford Armory last night. The Medford five, after four periods of scrappy basketball was the winner by a fair margin, 40-34.

It was evident the Cadets from the first minute were out to take the Company, when they opened with a killing pace. The game was exceptionally fast in the first quarter with the Cadets forcing the play but at the conclusion of the opener Manager Reardon's marksmen were in front 17-6.

Lead Narrowed
During the course of the second stanza the Company managed to keep in front by the deadly shooting of Paul Murphy.

Al Colclough and Bud Hogan were the big cannons of the First Corps failed to stop. When the half wound up the National Guard unit's advantage had been narrowed but they were still in the lead 24-19.

It was a somewhat rough and rugged second half, free of serious fouls though, due to the accuracy of Referee Shorty McCabe. The visitors tired in the third as did the home team when the chapter waned, but the Medford basketesters seemed to have the staying power to cling to their lead. Chase, jumping center for the Corps, zipped a long shot late in the third to knot the score. But it was just a matter of seconds when Bud Hogan flung a heave that sailed through the strings clear of the hoop. A successful side-court shot by Herb Doyle ended the period with E Company leading 32-29.

Fast Finale
The fast fatiguing Cadets made a strong final bid in the early minutes of the concluding quarter but lacked the dash and speed of the Company.

Chase looped a couple of shots that kept his quintet in the running. But the baskets of Manus Kane, Bud Hogan and Paul Murphy in that order kept E Company's lead safe to the end.

The Watertown Victory club, scheduled to play the Company E Seconds in the preliminary game, was not present to play. It is understood the car in which the team was coming to Medford from Watertown featured in an automobile accident at Arlington Center in which three of the Victory Club's players were slightly injured. WHAT HAS HAPPENED
Arrested for soliciting on the streets, Mae Keene is told by the magistrate that if she is an out of town girl he will permit her to leave without punishment on the condition that she goes home and does not return to the city. As Mae is a city girl, she insists on being taken to the city.

Danbury, Conn., as being her home town. Detective MacKenzie, the policeman who arrested her, puts her on the train. At 121st Street, however, she leaves the train. Impressed by the courtesy she receives at the hands of the taxi driver there, she consents to taking a cab. When she sees the meter mounting with alarming steadiness, she dupes Jimmy Doyle, the cab driver, out of his fare. She gets some money from her friend, Lil Blair, and returns to the back stand to give Jimmy his money just as he is telling his fellow drivers that he had had her arrested for running out on him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
The cab drivers, who had been listening, suddenly realized that she was the girl whom Jimmy was supposed to have treated so harshly. They jeered him good-naturedly.

"So you caught her in a doorway?" "Threw her right in the can!"

A third driver walked up to Jimmy, whose anger and embarrassment had arrived at a boiling point. "Tough guy, that's Jimmy!" he taunted. "Sure is a tough guy."

Jimmy wheeled on him angrily. "Shut your trap!" Simultaneously, he swung his fist. The driver fell back into the arms of his sympathizers, his eyes wide with surprise. Jimmy brushed Mae's hand away, and climbed into his cab, jamming the self-starter viciously.

Mae stuck her hand through the window. "Here's your money." Jimmy turned and glared at the cause for his ridiculous position.

"It's all your fault," he grumbled. "I've been that way since the day I met—"

She indicated Toots—that bum over there. Is he gonna marry you?"

Mae was deeply troubled. "I don't know—"

"Well, hon, you're gettin' what you want. Don't let nothin' put a crimp in it!"

"That's the one thing that scares me Lil," answered Mae apprehensively. "Sometimes I feel I oughta tell him all about myself. I wouldn't want to do anything to hurt him."

"I thought so," said Lil derisively. "You wanna hang on to him, don't you?"

Mae nodded. "More than anything in the world."

"Then keep your silly trap shut!" she commanded.

Mae spied Jimmy getting out of his cab. "Wait a minute," she told Lil, as she started for the door. "I'll introduce you to him."

Lil took her arm restrainingly. "No you don't—"

Mae looked at her curiously. "Use your bean!" said Lil wisely.

"He might know me," she walked off. "Some of my best friends are cab drivers."

Lil raised her eyebrows as she approached Gert and Toots. "Can anybody get in on this—or is it private?"

Gert straightened up. "Oh, it's your money."

"It ain't my Uncle Ezra," she retorted coldly.

Mae, upon receiving Jimmy's permission, hurried out to join Jimmy. He was to show her the gas station he was to buy.

They drove up to a small, but handsomely decorated corner station.

"There it is," said Jimmy. "Flan—" agans said I could buy a half-interest soon as I could put up five hundred dollars."

Mae looked at the station, admiringly. "It's a pretty place, isn't it?"

"It cost more, but the rest I can pay off."

"Gee, it'll be wonderful, Jimmy!" she said enthusiastically. "You'll be in business for yourself."

Jimmy was completely lost in his thoughts. "The first thing we gotta do is get a new sign. Flanagan & Doyle. Then I'm gonna have all the pimps painted."

"I can hardly wait!" she exclaimed excitedly. "When is this gonna happen?"

Jimmy came down to earth. "Pretty soon. I gotta get the five hundred first."

Mae was disappointed. "Oh—"

"But that won't take long," he said quickly. "I got three hundred and eighty already. In a couple of months I'll have the rest."

Jimmy was preoccupied with his dreams of the gas station on the drive home, almost ignoring Mae. She felt slightly blue by the time they arrived at her house.

Her mood quickly changed, however, for he asked her to marry him. And, refusing to allow herself to think of her past, she consented.

They got married at City Hall. "It didn't hurt at all, did it?" grinned Jimmy after the ceremony. Mae squeezed his arm affectionately.

"Well, Mrs. Doyle," he went on. "What do you think we ought to do now?"

"Anything you say, boss," she answered, looking up into his face. "Well, I figure we oughta have a honeymoon."

"That's what generally happens," she agreed.

"Okay. We'll go over to Palsades Park."

"We'll take in the works. Then go over to your place, pick up your stuff and move right into my apartment. How's that appeal to you, Mrs. Doyle?"

"Just grand, Mr. Doyle." He winked at her mischievously. Thoroughly exhausted, they got to Mae's apartment late that night. The girl searched her bag for her key, as she said:

"You can time me. I won't take over five minutes to pack."

"Better not," he warned her. "I'll fall asleep on my feet."

As she inserted the key in the lock, she looked up, puzzled.

"Gee, that's funny—I left my door open."

Opening the door, they found the room illuminated.

"Can you imagine," began Mae, "I left the lights—"

She stopped, horrified. Jimmy, following her gaze, jumped in surprise.

"MacKenzie, the detective who had arrested her for soliciting on the streets, watched them quietly."

HEAD OF THE CLASS

Although it is some years since the people of the United States began to overhaul their ideas, call home their illusions, and endeavor, generally to plant their feet in the solid soil of common sense, there are still a few waifs and strays roving the economic scene who surprise one. The fortunate thing about such is that, at last, they do startle and amuse. Time was when their oracular suggestions were swallowed whole.

For a beautiful example of the belated survival of this vanishing species, consider, if you please, Mr. Charles A. Miller, president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. From such a person, presumably, the country is entitled to expect sensible suggestions with respect to dealing with the present unpleasantness. Well, dear brethren, what has Mr. Miller to offer?

Appearing before a Senate Committee conducting hearings on public relief, Mr. Miller proposes the following: He would have all industries in the country resume normal operation as of 1929, with the Federal Government undertaking to stand in the background, ready to make up all losses any industry might suffer, out of the public till.

This unique proposal whereby we are to rise by hauling at our own bootstraps was received with solemnity by the conscript fathers. Nobody faints. There were no bursts of happy laughter. A president of the R. F. C. is a Personage. Doubtless that explains it.

Of was the nature of the reception given Mr. Miller's scheme explainable by the hopes of his hearers, some of whom (being lame ducks) see in it an opportunity for getting appointed by the White House to a commission to discover, after the plan is launched, just how much the Government will owe each particular industry in the Nation and where it is going to obtain the money to pay the bill. —The Boston Globe.

INTERNATIONAL INSINCERITY

When a sound business needs financial accommodation, it borrows money on proper security from another and more prosperous business. The time comes for payment, and the first business asks for an extension of time on the grounds that it is unable to spare the money from its business.

Then the creditor and debtor meet and talk the matter over—on a purely business-like basis. A mutually fair agreement is reached.

But when two nations become creditor and debtor the result is very different. Business methods are forgotten. Politics rears its head. The debt is made a plank in political platforms. It is wrangled over, and settlement blocked for purely political reasons.

That is the trouble with the war debt problem. Instead of being treated as a matter of banking it has been turned into a political football. The decision of France not to pay, after her Premier had worked to save his country's credit, was an entirely political decision, having nothing to do with the merit of the debts. France, indeed, is in a far better position to pay than either Italy or England, both of which met their obligations promptly.

The war debt question should be considered by a business commission, made up of men who understand the problem in all its phases. It should be immune to political influence. Then it will get somewhere.

Don't Drive When You're Tired

Motor Vehicle Administrators of the United States, the men who know, will describe a series of traffic violations and driving errors responsible for a majority of automobile accidents and advise how they may be avoided. This is number eighteen of the series.

By HAROLD P. TOMPKINS
(Commissioner of State Road Commission of West Virginia)

DON'T DRIVE WHEN YOU'RE TIRED. Fatigue and mental lapses are a far more important cause of automobile accidents than is commonly credited.

The driver in the picture above has evidently been driving too long and is weak from fatigue. In such a condition he is more than ever prone to accidents.

Accident reports give physical causes such as reckless driving, on the wrong side of the road, cutting in, speeding and others. What part of the $4,000 deaths and nearly a million injuries reported last year in the statistics of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters can be charged to this fatigue factor is, of course, incalculable.

Authorities believe, however, that extreme worry, preoccupation, elation, excitement, fatigue, and other symptoms of a disturbed mental or physical state are important contributory causes. Many of these mental and physical conditions can be controlled by the driver who wants to play safe.

When you have been driving for a long period at night, take a short rest or turn the wheel over to someone else for a while. Don't attempt to drive great distances in a single day.

Be especially alert when you are hurrying to work or to an appointment so that you can keep your mind on your driving. Control your temper, and be patient with other drivers.

Don't be inattentive at any time while driving. If you feel too tired to be alert stop for a while. Remember that driving demands good physical and mental condition and that tired drivers are not safe drivers.

If You Get Up Nights
Make this 25c Test
Physic the bladder as you would the bowels. Drive out impurities and excessive acids that cause irritation, burning and frequent desire. Get a 25c test box of BU-KETS, the bladder physic, from any drug store. After four days if you are not relieved of getting up nights go back and get your money. BU-KETS, containing buchu leaves, juniper, oil, etc., acts pleasantly and effectively on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. If you are bothered with backache, or leg pains caused from bladder disorders you are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep. "Liggett's" Drug Store, says BU-KETS is a best seller.

To Disband Three Teachers' Colleges in New York
NEW YORK—The three teachers' training colleges of New York city, the New York Teachers' Training College, the Maxwell Teachers' Training College, and the Jamaica Teachers' Training College, will be abolished on Feb. 3 and their 1931 students transferred to teacher training classes in the three city colleges, as a result of action taken by the board of education.
A saving of $250,000 annually will be effected by this decision, according to school officials. The three principals, the teachers, numbering 110, and the administrative assistants, clerical assistants and librarians will be transferred to vacant places in high schools and the three buildings now occupied by the teacher training institutions will be used to accommodate high school pupils whose number is expected to increase from 18,000 to 20,000 with the opening of the February term.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a bare movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a third, bad taste and your breath is foul. Stomach often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't rush for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Present a substitute. See at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Don't Be A Jaywalker

Motor Vehicle Administrators of the United States, the men who know, will describe a series of traffic violations and driving errors responsible for a majority of automobile accidents and advise how they may be avoided. This is number sixteen of the series.

By P. M. HARMAN
(Motor Vehicle Department, Illinois)

DON'T BE A JAYWALKER. Cross streets at designated cross walks. If there is a signal light, wait for it to stop traffic for you.

The problem of reducing pedestrian accidents and fatalities annually becomes more difficult, as the toll, especially among adults, increases.

Last year, according to the statistics of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, 14,500 pedestrians were killed. This was nearly half of the total of automobile deaths.

Jaywalking cost the lives of 5,080 persons, and injured 118,590 others. These accidents happened because these people attempted to cross streets diagonally, against the signal or between intersections.

Guest Night

In the absence of Mrs. C. T. Walker chairman of Guest Night, Mrs. E. M. Hodgdon announced that she had tickets in readiness for this affair, and that it would be held in Community Hall on Thursday evening, January 19th. There will be a caterer's supper at 6.30 followed by a social hour, with bridge and dancing later.

Study Groups

A meeting of the Choral Class was announced for Wednesday afternoon, January 18th at 22 Dearborn street with Mrs. J. W. Kennedy, and a meeting of the American Home Group was held this Wednesday afternoon, at 34 Martin street with Mrs. F. B. Marshall. Also a bridge party under the auspices of the Ways and Means committee to be held at the home of Mrs. H. M. Pingree, 58 Hillsdale road, the last week in January, exact date to be announced later.

The President, Mrs. Norse, expressed the sympathy of the club for one of its members, Mrs. F. A. Prescott, in the death of her husband.

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. D. A. Macone, who acted as chairman for the afternoon in place of Mrs. H. M. Pingree. Community singing opened the program with Mrs. J. W. Kennedy directing and Mrs. A. C. Sproul at the piano.

The Speaker

Mrs. Macone announced the speaker, Margaret Eggleston Owen, saying that she needed no introduction to the Mothers' club. Mrs. Owen gave a splendid and most helpful talk on the subject, "What Is a Good Home," and she said in part:

A Good Home

"Tomorrow's men and women are in our homes now and it is important that they shall learn from our homes to build those with right ideals. The girl leaving home should build on the traditions of her mother's home. A good home is far more than a place, it is an atmosphere made by those who live there."

"A factory is not guided by its machinery nor by the building which houses that machinery, but by its output. Just so, you will be judged by your output, your children, when they go out into the world. The child becomes like what he sees in the home and the aim of the parents should be to create an atmosphere of trust, goodwill, service and religion."

"One of the fundamentals for a good home is that Father and Mother have habits which can be wisely imitated, then out of it can grow children who will be good citizens."

A Mother

"A mother should be intelligent, she should have ideals, and she should be an inspiration to her children. She should use her intelligence in deciding what things should come into the home. There should be no cheap literature, even radio programs should be wisely chosen for children. Religious education should be given in the home, not leaving it entirely to the church."

"The developments and education of the child should be fourfold, physical, mental, moral, and spiritual, neither side neglected in favor of another. The mother should be intelligent in her teaching, training and living."

Ideals

"The mother should work for a home with ideals, always striving to lift some place in the home and to better it in every way. As long as the home is hers, she has the say as to its ideals and should insist on truth and loyalty and should uphold the highest standards."

Inspiration

"The mother, too, should be in some way an inspiration to her children. She should do something well, if only to bake a pan of biscuits. She should ask herself in what way she can be an inspiration to her children in years to come and work for that end."

Mrs. Owen, in concluding her talk, gave this as the answer to the question contained in her subject, "What Is a Good Home."

"A Good home is one where the children can beautifully grow up into manhood and womanhood following Dad and Mother." This talk was greatly enjoyed by those present, and seemed especially fitting for a Mothers' club.

4th Division Reunion At The Kenmore

MAJOR C. W. GALLAHER
President-Elect

The Fourth Annual Reunion and Dinner of the Fourth Division Association of New England will be held on Saturday afternoon and evening January 21st, at the Hotel Kenmore, Kenmore square, Boston. While the "4th" was composed of men from all over the United States, thousands of its members were from New England. At last year's reunion 200 were in attendance, and it is expected that this number will be exceeded this year. Registration will begin at 1:30 p. m., and the dinner will be held at 7 o'clock. Lengthy speeches will be taboo at the reunion and those attending will have plenty of opportunities to swap stories with their comrades of the Alsine-Marne, St. Mihiel, Muse Argonne and Champagne-Lorraine campaigns. After the dinner several reels of pictures will be exhibited showing the 4th Division in action.

Major Charles W. Gallaher of Belmont, newly elected president of the association, will be installed into office at the dinner. He served with the 4th Division in France as an officer in the 13th Field Artillery. Major Gallaher's home town was Iowa City, Iowa and he has been on duty here the past two years as army instructor with the 51st Field Artillery Brigade, with headquarters at Commonwealth Armory, Boston. Among the veterans expected is General Benjamin A. Poor of Fitchburg, who commanded the 7th Infantry Brigade of the 4th Division.

The committee in charge of the reunion is headed by Past President, Thomas H. Dooling, of Newton Centre who served as captain in the 8th Field Signal Battalion. He is assisted by Russell J. Marden of Newton Highlands, Treasurer, Ben Pollack of 5 Winthrop square, Boston, Secretary, and a large number of comrades in the six New England states. Mr. Pollack is in charge of information and reservations. A delegation of 4th Division veterans from New York city will attend.

John T. Devaney of 14 Auburn street, West Medford who served with Company F, 58th Infantry, is a member of the Medford unit of the Reunion committee.

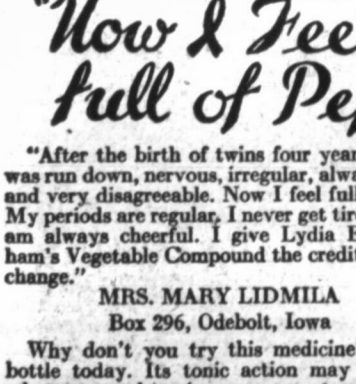

—Miss Helen Spierito, 15 Smith street, is back at work after the grippie.

Cellar Hermit

After choosing to live for three years as a hermit in the cellar of his own home, Arthur Doeblich, 22, of Cincinnati, Ohio, is shown as he emerged into the sunlight after his parents had called in the police to force him out. He is wearing the clothes which he had worn during the entire period of self-isolation.

"Now I Feel full of Pep"

"After the birth of twins four years ago, I was run down, nervous, irregular, always tired and very disagreeable. Now I feel full of pep. My periods are regular, I never get tired and I am always cheerful. I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the credit for the change."

South Medford Vermont Senator Proposes Pension For Mrs. Coolidge

WASHINGTON—To carry out a long-standing custom, Senator Warren R. Austin of Vermont proposed a $5000 yearly pension for Grace Goodhue Coolidge, widow of the late ex-President.

In a companion bill he sought to obtain for Mrs. Coolidge the franking privilege on her mail, so that it could be dispatched merely by her signature being put in the upper right corner of the envelope.

The bills, Austin said in a brief statement, "represent voluntary action without the knowledge of Mrs. Coolidge, conforming to various precedents in which the United States has expressed its appreciation of distinguished service performed by former Presidents." He added: "These bills also recognize the high character of public service rendered by the wives of Presidents."

"Among similar grants previously made, I found those of Julia Gardner, widow of John Tyler, Sarah C. widow of James K. Polk; Mary Todd, widow of Abraham Lincoln; Julia Dent, widow of U. S. Grant; Lucretia R. widow of James A. Garfield; Ida S. widow of William McKinley; Edith C. widow of Theodore Roosevelt; and Edith B. widow of Woodrow Wilson.

"It is a special pleasure to a Vermontor to propose these acts in honorable remembrance that both President and Mrs. Coolidge were born in Vermont, and that Vermont has cherished their continued love for the Green Mountain State."

Ex-Councillor Harris Tells of Coolidge

Former Councillor James G. Harris of Wyman street has the following to say regarding the late President Coolidge:

I suppose everyone who was ever connected in any way with Coolidge has a particular little fund of anecdotes which at this particular time is of passing interest.

Just previous to the selection of delegates to the National Convention there was a political dinner at the Hotel Somerset. At my table, a Mr. Estabrook as I recall the name, a member of the National Republican committee from New Hampshire, made the statement that he thought if Gov. Coolidge would express the desire for the delegates he could get practically all of those from New England; that quite likely he could get a few scattering delegates of New York and New Jersey; that he could go to Chicago and with these delegates as a nucleus could have something to say about naming a candidate, and possibly he might be able to obtain it for himself.

I was the senior member of his Executive Council at that time and he used to talk with me very frankly, and I with him, so the next morning after this conversation took place at the Somerset I went in to see him and related to him what had taken place. I told him what Mr. Estabrook had said and of the favorable response from all of those at my table, and I said, "Why don't you do it?" He turned to me and said, "There are two reasons. First, I don't know as I am big enough for the job; and in the second place, the office of President of the United States is one of such tremendous responsibility that I do not think any man should go out seeking it. Of course nobody would turn down the nomination but if I knew that I could go out and get the New England delegates,—if I knew I could go to Chicago and get the nomination,—I wouldn't turn my hand over for it."

How clearly he saw it all! It was this same tremendous responsibility that wore him out and ended a life just as it had reached the apex of manhood.

A prominent Boston politician went to Washington and among others I received a card on which was written "Saw Cal today. Had a fine time."

A few weeks later in talking with the President I said to him, "So and so wrote me that he called on you the other day and had a fine time." The President, in his dry way said, "Yes, he passed through the line."

Says "Interests" Back Federal Pay Cut

The executive council of the National Federation of Federal Employees has issued a statement saying it is firm in its conviction that "the campaign undertaken by special interests to break down the Federal service structure" is a menace to the best interests of the greatest number in the nation and that the council feels strongly that the genesis of that campaign in the special interests who believe they stand to profit largely by the achievement of such a breakdown should be generally understood and recognized. The National Federation is unalterably opposed to further inroads upon the already depleted envelopes of Government workers. The first pay cut was not dictated by sound economics, generally or specifically, nor by any consideration of good personnel practice. Recommendations for still further cuts are absolutely indefensible on any score. The National Federation of Federal Employees will oppose them with all the vigor at its command. The selfish special interests now endeavoring to crush the Federal service structure are no less assiduous in their efforts to trample the Federal level of wages to bare subsistence or below. They are seeking to make of the Federal Government an example of drastic and permanent wage deflation.

Somerville School Committee Recommends Teachers Contribute

The Somerville school committee has voted to recommend to the teachers that they contribute from 1 to 10 per cent of their salaries to the welfare fund. If the proposal is accepted by the teachers, even those who are only receiving $600 a year will be affected. The plan is that teachers who receive up to $1144 a year contribute 1 per cent; those receiving $1150 and over, 2 per cent; and so on until the highest paid teachers will contribute 10 per cent. If the plan is accepted it will mean the loss in salary of more than $500 a year to certain teachers. The committee was not unanimous.
